Final Project Proposal

For my final project I am planning on improving my midterm project which was based off of Puerto Rico, since the holidays are coming up I will make one page about holiday traditions and food, I will like to update the page about the puerto rican artists and make the layout different, as for the third page I am planning on making it an animation page. I will display my old CSS animation on this page alongside new animations, such as perhaps updating the navigation bar. This time around, I plan to use the flex navigation bar and display my information in a more organized way. As for fonts and colors I haven't decided, but I might try to do something gradient perhaps. Still not too sure. As for interaction, I would like to try to have images or buttons hover when the mouse is in contact with them, or one idea I have for the artist page would be to make the image enlarge and hover when you interact with it. This is a super rough draft of what I have in mind, but there may be a possibility that I change my topic to something art-related, like displaying different types of art? Not too sure yet, but it's a work in progress!
